

Claire's Day Maumee 2022

Authors/Illustrators

Ruth McNally Barshaw

Ruth McNally Barshaw grew up sketching and journaling life around her in little sketchbooks. Little did she realize she would do the same for her career. Today she has more than 300 little sketchjournals chronicling various events, trips, quirky discoveries, and times with beloved friends and family.

Her Ellie McDoodle books borrow the same format, with writing and cartoony art on every page. If you hang out with Ruth, you might get added into one of her sketchjournals. If you read her books, you might be inspired to put your own life on paper. Share your beliefs, memories, dreams ... keep a sketchjournal.

Louise Borden

Before she became a full-time writer and speaker, Louise Borden taught preschoolers and first graders and was even a part-owner of a bookstore in Cincinnati. Today, it is hard for her to separate her writing from the way she lives her life. Her own family, personal experiences, and friendships, as well as a love of history and travel, have rich and lasting connections to the books she writes. The first impulse to write a book is always triggered by something that has touched her indelibly. In addition to my writing, her work in schools allows her to travel the incredible variety of landscape in Ohio, and meet the heart of its people. She has spoken in over 400 schools across the country.

Nancy Roe Pimm

Nancy wrote her first book at age ten, and she brings it to the schools to encourage the students to believe in their dreams. In her more current books, Nancy has drawn from her experience as a pit crew member for her husband's race team to write, The Indy 500- The Inside Track and The Daytona 500-The Thrill and Thunder of the Great American Race. Nancy Roe Pimm also volunteered as a docent for the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium in the 1980's. After she took an animal handling class, the zoo entrusted her with a vanful of critters to take to local school assemblies. Another docent duty was to lead zoo tours. While giving the tours, Nancy discovered her fascination with gorillas, especially Colo and her family. In 2007, Nancy's book, The Heart of the Beast—Eight Great Gorilla Stories was published and in 2011, Colo's Story—The Life of One Grand Gorilla. All four of Nancy's books are Junior Library Guild Selections. Colo's Story has been chosen as a Choose to Read Ohio book and was selected to represent the state of Ohio at the National Book Festival in Washington, D.C.
